REBELS WIN TWO VICTORIES

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE official canvass last week-end settled one of the closest elections in Arkansas' history. Carl Bailey, whom local citizens heard for the first time two years ago when this writer

TO STUDY STATES

Commissioners Will Report How Other States Handle Employees

LITTLE ROCK—Carrying out a pre-election pledge to appoint an honorary commission to study civil service laws of other states, Attorney General Carl Bailey, nominee for governor, Sunday designated the following:
Lamar Williamson, lawyer, Monticello.
Raymond Rebsamen, business executive and accountant, Little Rock.
J. N. Heiskell, editor of the Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock.

Rebsamen As Chairman

Mr. Bailey said that Mr. Rebsamen would serve as chairman of the commission. The latter is an automobile dealer and insurance executive and for several years was a member of a firm of certified public accountants. He is active in civic affairs and has been selected to direct the 1936 Community Chest campaign next fall.
Interest which Mr. Williamson showed in the proposal that state employees be placed under civil service was responsible for his appointment to the commission, Mr. Bailey said. He declared that Mr. Williamson was among the first to endorse suggestions that civil service for state departments be established as a protection to employees and the public.
Mr. Heiskell also was commended by Mr. Bailey for having displayed keen interest in civil service proposals. The former is a member of the state Planning Board, facilities of which will be at the disposal of the new commission. Considerable information relative to laws of other states already is available, Mr. Bailey was advised.

To Work Grate

"The members of this commission will work without remuneration," Mr. Bailey said in announcing the appointments, "and I think that is as it should be. It is time that more of our citizens served voluntarily, and without being paid for it, to bring about improvement in public affairs."
"The entire state, I am sure, shares my confidence that the commission I have named will go thoroughly into all phases of civil service which are in force in various states. From this study will come recommendations which the members of the legislature and myself will find invaluable in deciding what legislation to adopt."
"Any suggestions which citizens of the state may care to offer will be welcomed by the honorary commission."

Convention Arrangements

Soon after announcing personnel of the commission, Mr. Bailey, left Little Rock for a vacation trip, from which he will return within a week or 10 days. Pending his return detailed plans for the biennial Democratic State Convention will be held in abeyance.

After his departure, close associates of the next governor were consulted.

Ex Local Man Is Chosen Legislator

Willis S. Plant Elected Representative From Monroe County

Willis S. Plant, 1930 graduate of Hope High School, will be among the 61 new representatives in the Arkansas legislature in 1937, having received the nomination from Monroe County.

Plant came to Hope in the summer of 1929. Through earnings as a barber at Capital Barber shop he attended Hope High School and played football, holding down a tackle berth. Leaving here with a diploma, a foot-ball sweater and $5, Plant went to Fayetteville and "barbered" his way through the University of Arkansas.

In 1935 Plant received his degree from the University law school. After marrying a Fayetteville girl, he returned to his home at Clarendon and engaged in law practice. His race for representative was his first bid for public office. In a two-man race he received a substantial majority.

Natives of Northern Luzon Island Are Threatened by Famine

Many more were believed killed in the storm, which swept in from the Pacific Saturday.

Is Nominated by 12 Parties in Peru

English Woman's Husband May Become President of Peru

RIO DE JANEIRO.—(AP)—Mrs. Grace Flinders de Prado, an accomplished English woman, would become first lady of Peru if her husband, candidate of 12 out of a total of 18 parties, should win the presidential elections in October.

Monsieur Benedetto Aloisi Masella, papal nuncio, married the couple here shortly after Jorge Prado had been made Peru's first ambassador to Brazil in 1934. Sir William Seeds, British ambassador, and Jose Carlos de Macedo Soares, Brazilian foreign minister, were official witnesses at the brilliant ceremony.

Recently, as the ambassador prepared to fly home to conduct a stump campaign and Mrs. Prado sailed for a two or three months' stay in Sussex, England, she expressed concern for the strenuous cares of office which must be her husband's if he wins.

"I really think the job of president must be very hard and tiring," she said. "And it seems that no matter how hard a president works, he is always criticized, don't you think?"

Former Elizabeth Simms Dies at 62

Native Hempstead Woman Dies in St. Louis—Funeral at Fordyce

Mrs. Elizabeth Simms Holderness, 62, former Hempstead county woman, died at 8 p. m. Sunday in a St. Louis hospital following an illness of three months. She was the widow of the late Robert T. Holderness of Fordyce.

Mrs. Holderness was born at Washington, August 1, 1874, the daughter of the late Capt. Thomas H. Simms and Lucie Moss Simms. She later moved to Fordyce and then to Little Rock.

At the time of her death she was president of the Home Telephone company of Fordyce with plants at Fordyce, Bearden and Sparkman.

Among the survivors are a son, T. Simms Holderness, who moved to Hope from Little Rock two months ago. He is connected with the district WPA office here.

Other survivors include two sons, Robert T. Holderness of Little Rock, and A. Sidney Holderness of Atlanta, Ga.; a daughter, Mrs. J. P. Sparks of Kirkwood, Mo.; four brothers and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in Little Rock. The body will be taken to Fordyce for burial at 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Would Cross the Ocean in Balloon

German Thinks Trade Winds Would Put Him Over in 5 to 8 Days

HAMBURG, Germany.—(AP)—Dr. K. Zinner's dream is to cross the South Atlantic in a free balloon.

Zinner, a German biologist, wants to conquer the 3,700 odd miles between Casablanca and the mouth of the Amazon by about the only way left to conquerers outside of swimming the stretch. The airplane and the dirigible tamed the winds over that span of water long ago.

Trying to Raise $12,000
By utilizing Northeast trade winds, he hopes to be the first human to float across. He thinks his hazardous plan is possible and that he can accomplish it in from five to eight days. He is now trying to raise the $12,000 necessary before the venture can take place. He wants a big that will hold 5,000 cubic meters of hydrogen. It would have a basket of inflatable rubber so that it would float in case it came down on water and he wants to take radio and meteorological apparatus along.

Dr. Zinner is a veteran at handling balloons. He has made many ascensions, the most notable from Germany to England over the North sea and twice over the Baltic sea to Sweden.

300 Cotton Pickers Wanted in River Bottom Sections

Re-Employment Office Has Openings for Whites and Negroes

TRUCKS FURNISHED

Other Plantations Will Provide Housing for Cotton Pickers

Jobs for more than 300 cotton pickers will be open next week in the river bottom sections of Hempstead and Lafayette counties. Orders for this number of pickers have been received by the National Re-employment Service office at Hope from plantations operators in the vicinity of Bradley and Fulton.

G. T. Cross, manager of the Hope district office of the Re-employment Service, in a tour of the plantation sections along Red river found that while many of the smaller farms have sufficient help to handle the crop, the larger plantations will need extra labor for picking throughout the season. Picking will be under way in all the fields within another week or 10 days.

Transportation by truck will be provided by some of the plantation owners from population centers such as Hope and Stamps to take workers to the fields once or twice a week; others have vacant houses on the place where families may live during the entire picking season.

Persons interested in cotton picking jobs should get in touch with the National Re-employment office on Main street, over Jack's Newsstand; openings are for white and negro men and women.

6 Cases Heard in Municipal Court

2 Others Postponed by Judge Lemley in Session Here Monday

Municipal Court Judge W. K. Lemley disposed of six cases Monday and two others were postponed in a short session of court at Hope city hall.

The results:
Pleading guilty to drunkenness and drawing $10 fines were Charley Smith, Frank Biddle and Charles Kelley.

S. E. Atkins was fined $20 on a plea of guilty to drunkenness and Howard bought forfeited a $10 cash bond on a drunkenness charge.

A charge of petit larceny against Horace Vines was dismissed on motion of City Attorney W. S. Atkins. Vines was charged with theft of a pair of shoes, the property of Mrs. R. T. Wilson.

Assault and battery charges against W. B. Bearden and J. M. Dodson were continued until August 24. A charge of drunkenness against M. E. Patrick was continued until August 24.

66 Lives Lost in U. S. Auto Crashes

Safety Campaign Gets Under Way in Many States in East

By the Associated Press
Automobile accidents took a toll of at least 66 lives throughout the nation over the week-end. Three persons were killed at Peekskill, N. Y., when the car in which they were riding with two other persons crashed into a bridge abutment.

In New York City a man was killed and three others injured when a car fleeing from police crashed into an apartment house on which the three were sitting.

Among developments in the field of accident prevention were the following:
The Massachusetts registrar of motor vehicles announced that applicants for license renewals over 65 years of age would have to undergo special tests.

Harvard University prepared for a two-weeks accident prevention and traffic control conference which police officers from 14 states are expected to attend.

The New Jersey motor vehicles commissioner asked clergymen to co-operate in a safety drive and suggested sermons on "Thou shalt not kill."

Sheriff Jim Bearden Is Recovering of Illness

Those held were: Myrtle Hynes, 55; the wife of A. L. Martin, 39; Claude Davis, 18.

Davis is day bell-boy at the hotel.

New Hot Wave on March Into East

Rains Fall in Midwest, But Dakota Crops Are Past Saving

CHICAGO.—(AP)—A new wave of 100-degree heat was moving eastward Sunday night, the Weather Bureau reported. Almost stationary over the week-end, it baked Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Indiana and edged into Ohio.

Temperatures of 104 degrees were reported from St. Louis, Mo.; Springfield, Ill.; and 106, and Charles City, Iowa, 98. Evansville, Ind., was equally hot.

Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma, blistered by a torrid sun for weeks, saw no sign of relief. The hot weather persisted over the Midwest despite heavy thunderstorms on three successive nights. Rain last night was heaviest in Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

At Chicago, the successive downpours brought the rainfall total for August to 2.22 inches, more than June and July combined.

Around Canton, Ill., creeks that had burned dry in rainless weeks were overflowing their banks.

The drought sections of the Dakotas were "comparatively cool" over the week-end, the weatherman said, but a hot heat wave was to move in Monday. The dry weather there, Howard Drew, WPA field representative said, had caused so much damage that no amount of rain from now on would change the fact that 75 per cent of Dakota farmers would need aid by late fall.

Capital Defense Is Driven Back; Field Defeat Also

Rebels Throw Back Counter-Offense Near City of Madrid

FIGHT NEAR BORDER

Battle on Portuguese Line—Rebels Victorious at Zaragoza

WITH THE REBEL FORCES AT BURGOS, Spain.—(AP)—Smashing rebel victories on both the Madrid and Zaragoza fronts were announced Monday by Fascist army officials.
Rebel advances said the Madrid government troops projected a violent counter-attack against the rebels besieging the capital, but the government forces were beaten back after a hard day of fighting.
What was described as "an important victory" in a battle with government troops was claimed by the rebels near Zaragoza. More than 600 government soldiers were reported killed.

Battle Is Raging

MADRID, Spain.—(Copyright Associated Press)—One of the bloodiest battles of Spain's month-old civil war was being fought late Monday in the ancient western province of Estramadura, with 20,000 government troops and 10,000 rebels trying to break the rebel blockade along the Portuguese frontier.

By the Associated Press

Government soldiers answered a rebel warship's shells thrown against Irún and San Sebastian Monday, with swift death for hostages before firing stops, reports reaching the Franco-Spanish frontier said.
The rebel battleship Espana rode in the Bay of Biscay, with her guns trained on Fort Guadalupe, near the two towns. Then the first shells whined from her 12-inch guns.
Sharp cracks from the executioners' rifles answered, and the Fascist rebel prisoners fell dead.
About 1,200 hostages were held in Irún, and 700 at San Sebastian.

Fight to Save Republic

MADRID, Spain.—(AP)—Spain's government, stumbling into the closing days of a month of civil war, was both by armed Fascist siege and by rising Communist clamor for a "baby Russia," announced Sunday night seizure of a vast store of clerical wealth.

Authorities said more than 200,000,000 pesetas (nominal about $26,200,000) worth of currency, gold, jewels and negotiable securities belonging to the Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul had been found by government accountants registering deposits at the Bank of Credit Lyonnais.

Contents of the sisters' safety deposit vault, as listed by the government, included seven pounds of gold coin, 60,000 pesetas in state bonds, 2,000,000 in Spanish bank notes, jewels, religious objects and monies of various nations aggregating 100,000,000 pesetas and deeds for 93 blocks of Madrid real estate.

General officers of the National Confederation of Labor announced that 500,000 pesetas in currency and negotiable securities had been taken from priests and nuns attempting to flee the country and "is being turned over to the government."

Gasoline Tanks Destroyed

Radio messages exchanged by foreign warships on the Northern coast indicated that rebel airplanes had destroyed a huge store of gasoline at Bilbao after the tanks had been guarded from shelling by sea with a human barricade of rebel prisoners.

Use of mechanical trench diggers marked a new phase of the government's defense program in the Guadarrama mountains. An elaborate system of trenches and barbed wire entanglements was being built along foothills of the range.

Anarchists and Reds Want More Action

Assaults on Oviedo and Zaragoza continued in the North, with aerial and artillery forces participating. Nevertheless, powerful Communist and anarchist elements in the government militia, discontented with the slow progress against the Fascist rebels, were menacing the heart of the defense.

"Direct, brutal, violent" action to stop the revolt was reported as the cry of anarchists, dissatisfied, apparently, even with the nightly executions throughout the country which were estimated to have cost the lives of several thousand Fascists.

The Communists have been urged by anarchist gunmen to seize complete power in Madrid. Discontent has spread to headquarters of the General Union of Workers, where the Socialist deputies, Caballero and del Vayo, are in command. These leaders, some advisers say, have been responsible for the direction of government forces in the last fortnight.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

In the daily routine of any office we soon meet certain persons who are affected with the condition commonly called "nervous." They are easily excited, quite irritable, and disturbed about the temperature, a draft, the sunlight, or some other minor physical factor.

Everybody knows that weakness of sight or of hearing may seriously interfere with the ability of a person to make good in employment, but few people realize that emotional instability may be even a more serious factor in relation to working condition.

Two people may be of equal intelligence, as was pointed out recently at a meeting of the Industrial Health Research Board of Great Britain, yet one will be moody, resentful of criticism, frightened of his superiors, and self-distrustful, while the other will be optimistic, adaptable, anxious to advance, and full of initiative.

The difference in the temperament of these two people may mean the difference between their success and failure.

The motion pictures have repeatedly depicted the reactions of subordinates when they were called "on the carpet" or summoned for an interview in the head office.

One type prepares for the worst, knocks on the door timidly, and walks in with knees shaking. Another may be moderately apprehensive at first, but when the interview actually begins, is quite capable of taking care of himself.

Executives of experience promptly recognize the emotional condition of the person concerned, and this recognition has much to do with the outcome of such interviews.

A survey of workers in an industrial plant in Great Britain revealed 17 girls out of 49 without any nervous symptoms. Of the girls studied, some were able to adjust themselves to noise, some had slight symptoms of nervousness in the presence of unusual noise, and some had severe symptoms. A group of 156 men gave results exactly like those of the women.

When studies were made of absence from work, it was found that the nervous individuals were much more likely to lose time from their work for slight causes than those who were not nervous.

It is, of course, quite possible to adjust working conditions to the temperament of the employee concerned.
For example, in a certain industry there were two typists of equal intelligence and of equal ability. The physical health of the two was about the same.

Nevertheless, one had an apparent fear of observation and simply could not work while other people looked on. When she worked in a room alone, her speed and quality of work was as good as, or better than, that of the other typist.

The first girl, who could work under any circumstances, however, was a more useful employee, because of her ability to the work of the institution concerned.

While "nerves" are largely an emotional attitude and to some extent a reflection of the constitution of the person concerned, there is plenty of evidence to indicate that good mental hygiene applied in such cases will bring about improvement in quieting and controlling the person and that it is well worth developing from an economic point of view, as well as from that of efficiency.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Every time I read a story that stops in its tracks to give details of an old-time smallpox epidemic, I feel like rounding up the entire flock and betaking them and myself off for a make-sure vaccination. Smallpox is something we know nothing about these days, but which even the kings of domains died of not long ago.

Something must have wiped it out.
If you have ever studied logic, that "something" must exist. Since small-pox disappeared simultaneously with vaccination and reappears in epidemic form without it, not taking into account scientific proof, it must be vaccination that has allowed civilization to go its way without terror of or attack from the disease.

Each man is entitled to his opinion about the pros and cons of immunization. I am not trying to convince anyone that he is either right or wrong, but this controversy comes up every summer, before school time, and the battle is on.

Law Permits No choice However, it seems to be a matter of health boards and state laws, which allow no quarter for opinion and save us in spite of ourselves, it seems, or, to put it differently, insist on the "good-of-the-whole" as opposed, (in some cases) to the comfort of the individual.
So vaccination it is. And mothers might like to know a few things about it.

First—unless your community provides first-class regional doctors and first grade serum and you can depend on both, take your child to your own doctor to have him vaccinated before he enters school. In time to get his arm well, too.

Second—keep on the gauze dressing the doctor affixes, until the scab drops off. If it needs further attention and more dressing, let the doctor do it.

Avoid Infecting Child
Third—give the child sponge baths, not tub baths, during the period of discharge. Any other open scratch or cut may pick up serum from the wound and become another embryo vaccination.

Fourth—don't let the child fool with the mark or scratch it, for the same reason.

Here and there, each year, there are a few sporadic cases where "things go wrong." This is the way with any general policy to further general welfare, and the most is made of it. But with renewed effort, as time advances, to increase safety, these cases become rarer. So I should not worry, especially since it has to be done anyway.
As always with the inevitable, it may be as philosophic as possible, and do our part by using discretion and care.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

You can best describe John Dos Passos' new novel, "The Big Money" (Harcourt-Brace; $2.50), by saying that it is a clinical examination of a mortally sick society.

Mr. Dos Passos returns once more to the kind of novel which he does so well—the novel which gets a perspective on the nation by studying it from the divergent viewpoints of half a dozen entirely separated characters.

In this one he gives us a young aviator, a female gold digger from Brooklyn, a go-getting young advertising man, and an intensely idealistic girl who is out to make the world better and brighter.

By shuffling their stories—which have very few points of contact with one another—tossing in handfuls of typical songs, newspaper headlines, and brief, seemingly unrelated biographies of people like Samuel Insull and Henry Ford, he presents a picture of America which is exceedingly fascinating.

Confusing Picture

The America which he portrays is a confused and rather terrifying land—the America of the post-war boom.

country of tremendous contrasts and endless movement, its old ideals under a cloud and its new ones yet formed.

His ambitious young aviator sets out to make a great career, winds up as a stock market plunger, and dies drunk.
His young gold digger rises to the heights as a great movie actress. His young advertising man lurches success at the price of everything worth having.

And his idealistic girl drifts into the radical labor movement, finds selfish ambitions and cross-purposes over-there, and acquiesces herself heartbreakingly with prosperous America's scanty underlife.

And it all adds up to a grim, brutal study of a nation heading for a grand crack-up; a nation wasting boundless energy and magnificent talents on the hurdy-gurdy of a pointless boom.

Rise of a Dictator
For a biting, ironical study of the growth and triumph of Fascism, read Emilio Lussu's "Road to Exile" (Con-vici-Friede; $2.50).

Signor Lussu was a member of the Italian parliament when the Fascist revolution occurred. An outspoken opponent of Mussolini he was harassed, persecuted, threatened, attacked, and finally imprisoned.

His escape to a neutral country was a sensation a few years ago, but he

'There Ain't No Such Animal'

says little about it here; he is chiefly concerned with describing the rise to power of Mussolini's henchmen.

His picture of the Fascists is an acid one. They emerge as cowards and bullies, brave only when the odds

CHAPTER IV

THE newspaper front pages were filled with details of a bank robbery. Molly read them, but, despite the headlines, she was sure it was going to be a dreadfully dull day.

Bored with herself, Molly yawned over the newspaper with its headlines about the bank robbery. She answered a telephone summons indifferently. Then her pulses leaped at the sound of a deep, strange voice. Almost strange, for there was something familiar about that voice.

Her interesting stranger.

He said, "Hello, Molly Milford."

"Hello, Sam Smith."

"That isn't my real name. It's Nelson—Whittaker. My friends call me 'Nelson.' Won't you?"

"Am I a friend?" Molly asked, glad the blue-eyed stranger could not see the flush of color to her face.

"I hope so, Molly."

"Nelson is a nice name. Not hard to say."

"You're not angry because I called?"

"No. Why should I be?"
There was a moment of silence.
Then, "I thought you might be bored."

"I am. Terribly."

"So am I. I was wondering if you'd have dinner with me. But I suppose that's impossible."

"Not impossible," Molly spoke in a firm tone.

"You mean you'll try some French cooking?"

"Yes." The word fluttered in her throat.

"I'll come out about 6. Or would you rather meet me some place downtown?"

Molly considered this a moment. It might be wiser to meet him downtown. "I could meet you at the side entrance of Wilson-Marx's around 8."

"I'll be there."

FOR dinner at Frenchy's—where-ever Frenchy's might be—she would wear her new pleated blue crepe with the white patent belt and a cluster of patent-leather flowers at the neckline. A small white hat and a white coat with the white fox collar.

"Why the excess energy?" Donna asked, finding Molly attacking her soft shining hair with a vigorous brush.

"Oh, just something to do," Molly admitted, smiling. "I'm fed up with sitting around wasting time."

"What's become of the Four Horsemen?"

A girl was standing there. A girl who was as much like Molly as her own reflection in a mirror.

"Wick bores me. Hubert bores me. Donald bores me."

"What about Brent?" Donna asked, surveying Molly with amused eyes.

"Brent bores me more than any of them," Molly spoke vigorously.
"Brent is the original cave man.
All he'd need would be an excuse to drag a woman about by her ear. Anyway, I've a new man on my mind. He's handsome and stimulating."

"I can't quite believe you've toppled for a new man," Donna drawled.

"Not toppled. Just leaning over a little, like the Tower of Pisa."

Molly put down the brush, sat on a stool near Donna and looked up at her out of lovely, candid eyes. She said slowly, "You wouldn't understand, because you've always been conventional.
When I'm married I'll settle down and be a model wife, too. But since I'm not, I'm going out and have dinner with a man I ran across last week at The Red Poppy!"

"Molly!" Donna's voice was startled. "What could Brent have been thinking of to take you there?"

"It was Wick."

"Poor Wick. You must have given him the devil of a time. He surely believes self-preservation is the first law. Honestly, you aren't serious about going out with this—this Bohemian?"

"He isn't a Bohemian," Molly spoke slowly. "He's much more the things that couldn't happen—yet it had.

Talking with this girl with the golden-brown hair was almost like talking to herself. But vastly different, too. Because unless terrible and cruel things had happened to you, your voice could never sound so cold, so hopeless, as this girl's did.

Molly studied the other girl.
The same slender nose, slightly tipped. The same shade of hair, the same eyes, the same contour of face. They were about the same size, too. A difference of two or three pounds, at the most.

"Well," Molly said shakily, "I guess I've met my double. They say everyone has one."

"So what?" the other asked sardonically. "We're a million miles apart in these clothes, aren't we?"

MOVED by a sudden impulse, half compassion and some other feeling she didn't stop to analyze, Molly said, "I'd like to change clothes with you. I'd as soon be wearing yours as mine."

"Oh yeah!"

"Please believe me, I'm in earnest. I want to change with you."

The girl's laugh rang harshly.
"Tell that to someone who hasn't cut her wisdom teeth yet. Besides," she added, "I won't need clothes much where I'm going."

"You're going away?"

"Yes."

"Then please take these with you—isn't there some place where we could change? We must hurry because I'm meeting a friend here at 6."

"You haven't much time," the other girl replied. "All right.
Anything to oblige. If you're planning to give the boy friend the shock of his life, I'll accommodate you. It will be a kind of shock to some friends of mine, too. I guess we can make it before the store closes. With everybody putting away stock, the rest room will be empty."

A few minutes later Molly stared at herself. Yes, clothes made all the difference. In the cheap, bright green crepe and the cheap hat with a green feather at the side she looked exactly as the other girl had a moment before.

The shoes were a trifle loose, but not enough to matter greatly.
The other girl opened her purse and took out a handkerchief and a small package, then handed her purse to Molly. She was smiling queerly.

"Empty," Molly decided. Her own purse was filled with bills.
She took one bill out.

"There's about $50 or $60 in bills in this purse," she told the girl. "Please keep them. And lock me up soon. I'm sure there's something I could do to help you.
We're not miles apart—two girls cut from the same pattern—"

"I'm afraid it's too late—now," the other said sadly. "I'm going away. But it's nice to know there are some kind people—even now."

Something in her expression caught at Molly's heart. "I don't know your name," she cried.

"It's on an envelope in the purse," the girl told her.

At the side entrance of the store, Molly saw Nelson Whittaker, anxiously scanning the faces of the crowd. He looked into her face for a moment blankly. Then, as Molly smiled, recognition leaped to his eyes.

Leaves Modeling
for Advertising

London's Most Famous Mannequin Quitting at Height of Career

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Gloria is leaving the mannequin business high and dry before it leaves her that way.

She occupies the number one position in England's dress parade ranks; is known universally by her single name; claims the world's picture publication record for girls; and most decidedly is not being forced to quit her profession—but she says "you can't always keep a young face."

So Gloria, who has let no grass grow under her shapely feet, is about to become a publicity director for a large department store (Selfridges).

Cuts What She Wants

She decided to become a mannequin in pig-tail days and thus began practicing before a mirror and watching her habits and food carefully to gain perfect poise and form. She did.

Then, when she finally had hit the star at which she had aimed, she decided to perfect herself in another profession to which she could turn for continued economic security. She has.

"I made up my mind years ago to quit modeling before it left me high and dry in the business world," she explained. "I've seen many come and go during my years in the business. The life at best is not long. Advertising work, on the contrary, holds no age limit for a woman."

Flooded With Proposals

Gloria is slim and fresh. Her figure is almost boyish. There are no wrinkles about her bright blue eyes. Sometimes she wears her golden hair in neat waves, sometimes it is curled.

All that makes for the heavy fan mail she receives daily. She gets proposals of marriage, too—addressed merely to "Gloria."

Her suitors may not know it but Gloria is married, and has been for some time. But her private life is a thing strictly apart from business. On the rare occasions when she finds us-were 100 to 1 in their favor, ready to seize home in panic at the slightest sign of danger. The tragedy was that the leaders of the opposition were equal cowards.

Alaskan Cows Do Fine on Fishmeal

Didn't Like It at First, But Then Acquired Taste
for It

FAIRBANKS, Alaska.—(AP)—Every day is Friday to University Farm milk cows on which Supt. Joseph T.
Flakne is experimenting with a fish-meal diet.

His preliminary report, recommending more thorough and extensive tests, said experiments so far with half a ton of Pelene William Sound fishmeal, commonly used as fertilizer, were "very satisfactory" and tend to prove that "fishmeal would be a very helpful addition to any dairy or stock feeding ration."

He said milk flow increased but there was little change in butterfat production, under fishmeal tests. It gave no appreciable odor or fishy flavor to the milk.

"A very satisfactory balanced feed seemed to be all the mixed hay each animal would clean up, plus a grain mixture in proportion to the amount of milk given by each cow. Our experience was that, at first, the cows would not eat the fishmeal, but that most of the cows acquired a taste for it and several of them will eat the pure fishmeal by itself."

Flakne's grain mixture contains 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of ground barley, 20 pounds of linseed meal and 20 pounds of fishmeal.

It was fed before and after milking and increased milk production 5 to 10 per cent, he reported.

Just to give up, and trust
All to a fate unknown,
Flooding along life's road in the dust,
Bounded by walls of stone;
Never to have a heart at peace;
Never to see when care will cease;
Just to be still when sorrows fall—
This is the bitterest lesson of all.
Just to give up and rest
All on a Love secure,
Out of a world that's hard at best,
Looking to heaven as sure;
Even to hope through cloud and fear,
In darkest night that the dawn is near;
Just to wait at the Master's feet—Surely now the bitter is sweet.

Mat Champ Is to Show Here Friday

LeRoy McGuirk Signed to Meet Jack Curtis at Hope Arena

The South Walnut street wrestling show takes on added interest with the scheduled appearance here Friday night of LeRoy McGuirk, world's champion light heavyweight grappler.

The champ has been signed to meet Jack Curtis, clever Mississippi, in a non-title bout. Curtis made his ring debut here last week against Frankie Hill, winning two straight falls from him.

Curtis put on a clean exhibition. Promoter Bert Mauldin announced that another all-local amateur show would be presented Tuesday night.

The feature bout will be between Nolan (Tootsie) Carlie, who has two knockouts in three fights here, and an opponent from Spring or Stamps. It will be three rounds.

A battle royal between five Hope negroes will open the show, followed by a three-round fight between James Williamson and an opponent dubbed as "Red Bird." Both are negroes.

The second prize will be between Pink Carrikan and Chester Jones. Both are negroes. Carrikan won a close decision over Earl Cassaway last week.

R. C. Kennedy, Henderson State football star, takes on an unannounced opponent in the third amateur bout. It will be three rounds. Kennedy's opponent will be named Tuesday.

Next on the program will be a three-round battle between Toughie Reno and Tom Smith, hard-biting basket factory negro. Reno has been successful in several fights. His opponent Tuesday night will be his toughest assignment thus far.

The show starts at 8:15.

regarding a reported movement to have the convention transferred from Hot Springs to Little Rock. The State Committee last month fixed the time of the convention as September 18 and 19 and the place as Hot Springs.

Friends of Mr. Bailey said that, though he knew the Hot Springs city administration was opposed to him and had been responsible for the heavy vote against him in Garland county, he was not disposed to seek vengeance by interfering with previously made plans for the party's gathering to be held in Hot Springs.

"Carl Bailey is not going to give any political enemies grounds for saying he is motivated by spite," one of his campaign associates said. "He was not asked to suggest the place of the convention, but since it has been done, he does not propose to attempt to interfere with the plans made by the present State Committee."

All over the state today, Democratic county conventions will meet and elect delegates to the State Convention. The Pulaski county convention will be held at the courthouse at 2 p. m.

"Out of Commission" Mr. Bailey left Little Rock by automobile but he wasn't doing the driving. When he arose Sunday, he could hardly move his right arm. Every time he moved it, the pain was excruciating.

He called a doctor, who examined it and handed down the following verdict: "Too much handshaking. Cut it out for awhile."

most panic stricken," one Communist leader has declared. Premier Jose Giral Pereira, this Communist said, is reluctant to order the bombing of rebels barricaded in monuments of historic importance, such as the Toledo Alcazar.

"It is impossible to win the war with such namby pamby tactics," the Communist added. He reported echoes of rising resentment from workers, both Communists and anarchists, who make up the hurriedly enlisted government militia. Reliable witnesses say anarchists have refused in many cases to obey orders of their officers when under fire in the mountains north of Madrid. They have disorganized entire actions and at times, seized with panic, have taken whole battalions with them in flight.

President Manuel Azana and Premier Giral Pereira are struggling with their backs to the wall, fighting to save a democratic republic from Fascism.
